Roosevelt was the star witness at today's session of the suit before Referee Brown to dissolve the steel trust because it is alleged by the government to violate the anti-trust law. His entire testimony as presented to the Stanley Steel committe was re-affirmed and incorporated as evidence. After it had become a part of the proceedings, Attorney Lindsbury, for the trust, got into the record that it was Roosevelt's copinion at the time and was still that the merger was justifiable.

ETHING THE MAY SCHOOL AND THE MAY SCHOOL A

Marie Cavan, Armand Crabbe, and George Vivian pleased an audience smaller than their merit deserved at the Park theatre, last night, when they resented "The Secret of Suzzanne", the intermezzo in one act, arranged for string orchestra and piano by Ermanno Wolf-Ferrari. The artistes are members of the Chicago Grand Opera Company. Miss Cavan sang with strength and sympathy. As an actress she is dainty and accomplished. Mr. Crabbe showed strength, and interpretative power. The pretty little musical

Roosevelt, today, declared that he had never seen any reason to believe it was not a wise action.

"Those were panic times, Judge Dickinson," solemnly and impressively declared the ex-President, "and the men who advised me that necessity required that the steel corporation were giving the best information they possessed.

"It was a matter of life and death to them. Financial wrecking or salvation of the country depended upon the accuracy of that information. It showed me beyond the question of a doubt that the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company never could be developed unless taken over by competent hands and none of the facts you have alleged—(that the trust made its control of the industry absolute by the amalgamation)—had they been known to me at that time, would have influenced me in the least. The judgment in expert financial circles in the time of panic was what influenced me and nothing that you have stated concerning the acquisition of other competing companies by the steel corporation would have had the slightest effect on my decision. I was dealing with a panic and was convinced be-
